“The Texas Volleyball Camp provides an opportunity for young ladies of all ages to come to The University of Texas. We strive to provide a positive camp experience through training, fun activities, and interaction with our staff and other campers. I think camp is a great way for athletes to get better during the summer while having fun and meeting new people.”

Camp Staff

In 11 seasons as Texas' head coach, Jerritt Elliott has continually kept the Longhorns among the nation's elite. The 2011 season was no different as Texas claimed its fourth Big 12 Championship in five years and made their NCAA-best sixth straight NCAA regional final. Texas finished the season ranked fourth in the final AVCA and Volleyball Magazine polls of 2011. Elliott's Longhorns have become a permanent fixture in the national spotlight, and the future is even brighter. One of the nation's best recruiters, Elliott has brought in a top-five nationally ranked recruiting class in each of the last five seasons. Elliott's peers also took notice of his work during the 2011 season, voting him Big 12 Coach of the Year and AVCA Central Region Coach of the Year. The Texas Volleyball Camp brings the training and instruction used by the Longhorns to the camp gym. Elliott and his coaching staff strive to bring a positive experience to all campers while working in a fun, hard-working environment.

Leading the Texas Volleyball Camp staff are Elliott's assistant coaches, associate head coach Salima Rockwell and assistant coach Erik Sullivan. Rockwell and Sullivan both bring a wealth of experience from the collegiate and international levels. The assistant coaches are instrumental in helping Coach Elliott run one of the most successful camps in the nation. Additionally, many current and former Longhorns serve as counselors and coaches. The camp staff is bolstered by a bevy of stellar college, high school and club level coaches and players.
